As soon as you arrive, the traditional wooden façade of the chalet sets the tone.

As you push open the front door, you are seduced by the warm decoration, mixing vintage and modern.

The wood panelling and carefully stacked logs in the living room give the chalet the air of a mountain refuge.

The old photos on the walls and the tweed curtains are reminiscent of another time, but the modern fireplace and the clean-lined furniture add a subtle contemporary touch.

Throughout the chalet, furs, cowhide throws, leather club chairs and cosy sofas invite you to relax.

Large windows open the chalet to the mountains covered in fir and larch trees. In the morning, you put on your boots, kept warm by boot warmers in the ski room, before setting off for the slopes. At midday, you can take a quiet break in the high-altitude Clos Bernard restaurant Rte de l'Altiport, 73550 Les Allues, Francia .

Back at the chalet, you go to the sauna to warm up. In the evening, we enjoy a homemade fondue comfortably installed on the large dining room table. Before going to bed, we venture outside one last time to enjoy the serenity of the landscape in the warmth of the jacuzzi.
